LINKS: How to use grain?

In Game of Sultans, grain is an essential resource like in many similar strategy games set in similar periods. Here it is used for soldiers' levy, meaning it directly determines how your army size. You obtain grain from leveling in Imperial Affairs, Imperial Parliament, from various events, and even from some items. Boosting your Politics attribute will increase your Grain levy. Good resource management is crucial in all aspects of the game, and thus you should invest as much attention in other resources as you do in Politics.

The grain is counted as a political sub-resource and you should only be careful not to run out of it. How to use energy orb? Energy orbs are used to restore energy, needed for visiting your Consorts and other NPCs in the Masquerade. They are obtained through main quests, achievements, events, and purchased at the store. There are other types of Orbs, all with different purposes, but still similar to this one, like Vitality Orbs that restore Vitality.

You should first use free chances if you have some available, before using your orbs. To use them, you should: Go to the Masquerade screen Tap the recovery icon at the bottom-right corner of the screen Tap to use energy. How to increase talent? Viziers play a major part in your rule as a Sultan and their talents are what makes all the difference when you are choosing which to level up. Increasing talent in a Vizier is done by simply tapping on the portrait of a Vizier you chose to improve, tapping on the Develop icon, and then viewing the talents that particular Vizier has and improving the ones you like.

However, leveling up a Vizier and improving their talents are two separate things. While their talents do increase in stats with each new level, you can improve the Talent early on, to get the most out of your Vizier. Improving a talent will require an Enhance Badge and each talent type has its own: Military, Political, Prestige, and Research. Each Enhance Badge has a basic chance of 25% to improve the talent actually, which is an average of 1 out of 4.

Enhance Badges are then very important to obtain from wherever you can, and you get them from opening Badge Packs, awarded from campaign progress or events. You can also use Book XP to improve a Vizier's talent with a 100% success chance, which is gained from limited-time in-game events, like the Consume Gold event, or by sending the Vizier to the Academy. How to leave a union? In Game of Sultans, you forge unions instead of joining guilds.

Being in a Union can have several benefits, besides having allies. If you create your own or join another Union, you'll have access to union quests and rewards, which is pretty standard in these types of games. Your allies and you can contribute together and reap the benefits, but you can also an option to contribute Diamonds and earn Silver Coins. Just click on the redeem tab and see what goodies you can buy with them. However, here, there is another benefit to it – the Exploration Feature.

To leave a Union, you do it in two different ways. If you are a leader of a Union, you need to transfer leadership to another sultan first, or you can disband an entire union. If you are a member of a Union, just go to the Union screen and find the Leave Union icon. There is a 24-hour ban on joining another union after you leave one. Being in a Union gives unprecedented benefits, like the option to send a Vizier on a Union Voyage.

Since leveling up your viziers is crucial, this is a very important feature. You can send one Vizier for free, while you can spend a PvE seal to add another one. Completing a Union Voyage will grant you free rewards and experience. How to get VIP? Currently, there are 13 VIP levels in GoS, all for purchase. Doing microtransactions i.e. purchasing something in-game, will yield a certain amount of VIP points. Accumulating enough will earn you a VIP level.

For example, you need 499 points for VIP level 1, 1,999 for VIP level 2, etc... VIP levels will yield Vizier bonuses and unlock some strong Viziers and Consorts. They will also yield numerous other rewards, like silver and gold earrings, agate and emerald rings, various packs, and other stuff. How to increase charm? Charm is one of the two Consorts' traits, the other being Intimacy. Consorts are very important to produce Heirs, and for providing valuable bonuses of course.

As a Sultan, you encounter Consorts in the area known as the Masquerade. When you keep seeing the same Consort over and over again, your intimacy level with her will increase, allowing you to marry her eventually. Married Consorts are then moved to your Harem, though you continue the Masquerade. Consorts gain experience when you visit them, which can be used to improve Viziers even. As far as the Consorts stats go, Intimacy increases attributes of Heirs you produce with them, while Charm determines how much experience the Consort gains with your every visit.

Higher VIP enables more upgrades and limits.
