A massive $2 million in prize money is up for grabs, and the Kentucky Derby attracts all the best 3-year-olds, jockeys, trainers, and owners in the business to fight it out for the prize. For bettors, this is one of the best horse racing events to wager on and make some serious bank. This year, the Kentucky Derby was won by Country House — a massive underdog at odds of 62-1. Country House was awarded the win even though Maximum Security had crossed the finish line first.

The racetrack stewards subsequently disqualified maximum Security for interference after he changed lanes without clearance on the final turn and impeded other horses. Preakness Stakes. The month of May is one of the best for U.S. horse racing. The Preakness Stakes is held the third Saturday of every May at Pimlico Race Course in Baltimore. It is the second fixture in the U.S. Triple Crown. The race is contested at a distance of 1 3/16 miles on the dirt.

Top 3-year-old males contest the race annually, and on five occasions the Preakness has been captured by a filly: Flocarline (1903), Whimsical (1906), Rhine Maiden (1915), Nellie Morse (1924), and Rachel Alexandra (2009). This, too, is a Grade 1 race. In 2019, the winning horse was War of Will. Belmont Stakes. This is the final race of the U.S. Triple Crown. Called the "Test of the Champion," the Belmont Stakes is held every year in June, three weeks after the Preakness.
